COA ANNUAL REPORT

FY15: July 1, 2014–June 30, 2015

I love nothing more than telling stories of success and good news about our incredible college. One way I tell these stories is through a series I've created for our Board of Trustees called the College of the Atlantic Highlight Reel. A perusal of the Reels from this year include the following elements:

COA received the 2014 Honor Award from Maine Preservation for our renovation of The Turrets. Maine Preservation called the architectural center of our campus “one of Maine’s historic and architectural treasures.”

In August 2014, COA and the Island Institute officially launched the Fund for Maine Islands. This community partnership seeks to bring together the combined expertise of the College, the Institute, and island communities to solve problems relating to energy, food, education, and climate change on Maine islands. The launch celebration honored Polly Guth and brought special guest Bill Moyers to help kick things off.

Social and climate justice issues such as those we are examining through the Fund were also front and center in the spring, when best-selling author and environmental activist Naomi Klein spoke at commencement. This was the third year in a row seniors had Naomi on their “top picks” list, and so it felt especially good to bring her here.

Naomi’s address was tremendous—moving and thought provoking—and her personal meetings with students, visits to classes, and time spent with environmental justice activists created many memorable moments. Her address was also picked up by The Nation and shared with an international audience a few weeks later.

COA appeared before another international audience in June 2015 when we were featured on the front page of the business section of The New York Times. Calling COA “a college that tackles climate change, one class at a time,” writer Diane Cardwell highlighted the type of community relations and energy work that we are doing here that makes me proud. “As universities and other institutions grapple with ways to fight climate change,” Cardwell wrote, “whether by divesting from coal companies or installing wind turbines on their grounds—College of the Atlantic is nudging its students to reach outside the school’s boundaries and start changing the real world.”

We love to highlight the achievements of our students, and one that stands out from last year is the incredible academic recognition given to Ellie Oldach '15 when she received a prestigious Fulbright Research Scholarship. It was the first time in the history of the college that a student has won a Fulbright. Ellie is spending ten months on New Zealand’s South Island working to understand and model coastal marsh and mussel bed communities. She joins a long history of COA faculty Fulbright Scholars, and we’re so excited for her.

The beginning of 2015 brought some great faculty news as well. Film professor Nancy Andrews’ first feature length film, The Strange Eyes of Dr. Myes, premiered at the Rotterdam Film Festival and was described as a “cinematographic marriage between ‘mad-scientist’ Hollywood dramas from the 1930s, and juicy B-films from the 1960s.” The film, which features Jennifer Prediger '00, went on to be chosen as one of ten projects for a yearlong development fellowship with the Independent Filmmaker Project. I expect we’ll be hearing much more about it in the future.

The year was excellent, but it was not unique. Looking back to previous years, I see similar tales of excellence around students, faculty, staff, the campus infrastructure, and the institution as a whole. What strikes me most about all this news, both then and now, is the clear link between our achievements and philanthropy. Every piece of news—not almost every piece, but every piece—ties back in one way or another to the commitment and dedication of the people who support the college philanthropically.

As you work through this year’s annual report, know that your support for this amazing college is what drives the learning, the teaching, the commitment to Mount Desert Island, and the role our alumni play in making the world a better place.

Thank you for all the good news you make possible.

FINANCIALS

from the Administrative Dean

Fiscal year 2015 was successful financially, as we balanced the operating budget, increased our endowment to $47.7 million, and continued to pay down our long-term debt. During the fiscal year, we had endowment gains and earnings of $2.9 million (about a 6% return), received and invested new gifts of about $1.1 million, and allocated about $1.6 million to the operation of the college. Our total fund balances declined slightly to $69.5 million as our plant and equipment funds after depreciation declined by about $800 thousand, and other assets, primarily restricted and temporarily restricted funds, declined by $1.6 million.

The summary of operating budgets shows our results for fiscal years 2014 and 2015. Note these figures do not include depreciation, but do include the cost of debt service and the purchase of equipment. The major source of operating revenue continues to be net tuition. Our tuition and fees grew from the prior year by $300 thousand, while student aid remained nearly steady. We are still seeing families who are feeling the effects of the slow economy and their need for more financial support.

Other significant revenue sources include the annual draw from our endowment, our Annual Fund, and the Davis United World College Scholars Program. The support from our endowment and related investments grew to $1.9 million and is continuing to grow both from donations and investment returns. We had a wonderful year-end drive to support the Annual Fund, which reached a record $1.2 million. The Davis scholarships continue to support a wonderful cadre of international students who have graduated from United World Colleges. Several of the other revenue sources are offset by related expenses such as housing, dining, and operation of summer activities.

We have continued to hold the line on the expense side of the ledger over the last several years. Our major on-going expense increases have been modest salary raises and additions to the faculty to keep pace with growth of student enrollment. And we, like many organizations, face increases in the cost of health care insurance, which is the major component of our fringe benefits.

Overall, we are grateful to our supporters who help COA meet its mission through their generous contributions.

WHY I GIVE

Matt Shaw '11

I give to COA because it's the place that taught me that art is as important as politics and environmental stewardship—that art opens us to a way of being in the world few other things can. Simultaneously, I learned the importance of dialogue between fields of research. COA is unique in its ability to offer this model of education because of its small size and remote location. The human ecology of my degree came in utilizing my peers and the mentors I found on faculty and staff. They were beacons in navigating my own work and continue to be. I give back what I can to make sure these experiences are possible for students for many years to come.

THE CHAMPLAIN SOCIETY

The Champlain Society (TCS) is College of the Atlantic's premier giving society. The Champlain Society was created in 1988 to give appropriate recognition to those special friends who contribute $1,500 or more to the Annual Fund. The importance of annual giving at this level is critical to the stability and ongoing operations of the school—to advance the college's mission, with academic excellence, to provide financial aid where needed, and to support maintenance and stewardship of the campus. We thank the following for their support.

WHY WE GIVE

Cayla Moore '14 & Stephen Wagner '11

Stephen and I give for many reasons. On the one hand, we give because we know the level of alumni contributions is a critical indicator that foundations and donors consider when evaluating a college, and COA's stature now is just as important to our current professional lives as it was when we were students. On the other hand, we give because making a financial contribution is an easy way to show our gratitude for the formal and informal educations we both received at COA. And, being members of the Black Fly Society makes giving just as easy paying for our Netflix account!

In short, we give because we know that our degree, like any relationship, is grounded in history, but requires continued time and energy to thrive.

COA YEAR IN REVIEW

JUL

Artist Jennifer Judd-McGee ('92) opens Rows: Community, Pattern, and Landscape at COA's Blum Gallery.

The Peggy Rockefeller Farms obtains a commercial agriculture permit allowing it to fulfill more college and community needs, raising 30 sheep, 50 egg-laying hens, 200 meat chickens, and planting more than 50 apple trees, a 1/2 acre of organic vegetables, and 30 acres of hayland.

Television producer and screenwriter Jenny Bicks discusses her work on the HBO series Sex and the City and creating the ABC series Men in Trees at a Coffee & Conversation event.

AUG

Film producer Heeth Grantham '94 and Maine State Game Wardens Tim Spahr '86 and Troy Thibodeau '04, speak at a Coffee & Conversation event about their work and Animal Planet's North Woods Law.

Princeton Review rates COA as #3 among top liberal arts schools for "professors get high marks," #9 for best food, and in the top 20 for faculty access, quality of life, and financial aid. And Washington Monthly calls COA one of the top 100 "affordable elite" schools.

COA and the Island Institute launch the Fund for Maine Islands at a dinner honoring Polly Guth with special guest, TV journalist Bill Moyers.

SEPT

The year opens with John Deans '07 as the Convocation Speaker and 107 new students—80 first-years, 23 transfers, and 4 graduate students.

The Hatchery, COA's venture incubator, is asked to be a founding member of the University Network of Incubators and Accelerators, administered by the Rice Alliance for Technology and Entrepreneurship at Rice University in Texas.

Some 20% of COA students, numerous alumni, faculty, and staff attend the People's Climate March in New York City. Matt Maiorana '11 and Juan Carlos Soriano '11 are on the national organizing team.

OCT

Faculty member Doreen Stabinsky and Michelle Pazmiño '17 attend the 12th Conference on Biological Diversity in Pyeongchang, South Korea.

As they travel the national parks for the Great West 3-credit "monster course," eight students and faculty members Ken Cline and John Anderson affirm that water defines the region.

The exhibit A Visit with Ashley Bryan opens at COA's Blum Gallery.

NOV

Jay Friedlander, faculty member in socially responsible business, gives a TEDx talk on his concept of the abundance cycle.

A delegation from the student group Earth in Brackets is invited to UNFCCC planning meetings in Venezuela as civil society members.

The 2nd Annual Speed Resume Review for seniors was a success. Each participant was given eight minutes in which time a local professional, COA faculty, or staff member read, and then discussed how to strengthen the resume for a wider job market. Once the buzzer sounded, seniors moved to the next reviewer.

DEC

COA adds four Belted Galloways to the Peggy Rockefeller Farms.

A presentation on the impact of collaboration in two Yucatan fishing villages by Pablo Aguilera del Castillo '15 is selected as one of three "exemplary" undergraduate posters at the 2014 American Anthropological Association Annual Meetings in Washington, DC.

COA receives Maine Preservation's 2014 Honor Award for Rehabilitation for our work restoring The Turrets. The Preservation called The Turrets "one of Maine's historic and architectural treasures."

JAN

The Strange Eyes of Dr. Myes, faculty member Nancy Andrews' first feature film, premieres at the Rotterdam International Film Festival, known for its indie and innovative films. Indiewire calls the film "gorgeous and deliciously weird." Enhancing the COA presence at the Dutch festival is Jennifer Prediger '00, appearing in both Strange Eyes and Valedictorian.

A design by Arika (Bready) von Edler '12 is chosen by MOFGA, Maine Organic Farmers and Gardeners Association, for the 2015 Common Ground Country Fair poster.

FEB

During one of the coldest weeks in February, when temperatures average 14°F, COA residence halls engage in a hot competition to reduce energy usage. The winner is Seafox, which lowers usage by a whopping 18%. Overall, residences are down by 8%, proving, say organizers, that it can be done.

During COA's 24-Hour Challenge, the college receives 810 gifts and nets $68,711 in an intense 24-hour marathon of fund raising.

MAR

Trustee Nadia Rosenthal Joins Jackson Laboratory as Scientific Director.

Twelve students spend half of their spring break at Mount Desert Island Biological Laboratory tracking the development of sea urchins and analyzing genetic samples as part of an annual molecular genetics workshop offered to COA students.

APR

COA celebrates Earth Day.

COA President Darron Collins '92 meets with the community to hear about COA's strengths, weaknesses, how we stand out, how our interdisciplinarity works, and other questions, all to create our new strategic plan: the MAP.

Eliza Oldach '15 receives a Fulbright Scholarship to New Zealand for her project, A New Lens for Coastal Conservation: Developing and Applying the Habitat Cascade Theory.

The Princeton Review places COA at #8 in the annual ranking of sustainable colleges and universities.

MAY

Thirteen undergrads, two graduate students, and two faculty members from College of the Atlantic are in Samsø, Denmark for two weeks, studying ways to bring energy independence and cost reductions to Maine islands.

Senior project shows abound in the Ethel H. Blum Gallery as one of many means of displaying work to the public.

Khristian Mendez '15 presents a staged reading of his senior project play, The Floor is Yours, an inquiry into the many aspects of the United Nations environmental governance system.

JUN

Naomi Klein, author of This Changes Everything (which quotes Anjali Appadurai '13 in the introduction), is the graduation speaker at commencement.

Documentary filmmaker Judith Hallet and husband Stanley, professor emeritus of architecture at Catholic University of America, screen their film, Tale of the Tongs, about the construction of a memorial on the island of Inishturk, Ireland, the people who live there, their culture and landscape.

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC PHOTOJOURNALIST Amy Toensing '93

Alumna Amy Toensing '93, a photojournalist for National Geographic, tells stories with sensitivity and depth, and creates intimate essays about the lives of ordinary people. Her photographs tell of hunger, drought, poverty, and urbanism in places around the world, including exotic locations such as The Kingdom of Tonga, Papua New Guinea, and New Zealand. "I think every story I do changes me and affects me and teaches me. Every story is like taking a graduate level course in something, which is one of the best parts of what I do, and I'm lucky that way."

Toensing's work has been exhibited throughout the world and recognized with numerous awards. It has appeared in Smithsonian, The Boston Globe, The Wall Street Journal, Newsweek, Time Magazine, and National Geographic Traveler. A photograph she took in the Australian outback was chosen as one of National Geographic Magazine's all time 50 Best Photos.

Toensing says that she found College of the Atlantic a good fit for who she already was when she came to the coastal Maine school, and that COA allowed her to explore multiple interests. "I've always been really interested in the human aspect of everything, and that's what COA is. It's looking at what humanity is in everything," she says. "It furthered me with that way of thinking, which was really wonderful. I don't feel like a lot of places are doing that."

Linda and Clem McGillicuddy

We first visited the College of Atlantic campus twenty-five years ago. We attended a lecture conducted with slides under the early evening sky. John Wilmerding, the Princeton art historian, gave a wonderful talk about paintings of Winslow Homer. It was a simply superb experience. The college continues to offer extraordinary art shows and talks by scientists, political figures, and authors.

Recently we attended a lecture given by a visiting professor on the subject of climate warming measurements. It was gratifying to see the rapt attention of students and faculty. The top notch Davis UWC Scholars, who are students from all over the globe, bolster the academic climate at the college and their cultural influence is invaluable.

The energy and idealism of COA students is infectious!
